VIDEO CONFERENCING AVAILABLE THROUGH CPS HUMAN RESOURCE SERVICES

Sacramento, CA—(September 2002)— Sacramento area businesses and public agencies can now conduct long-distance meetings and interviews face to face by using the new Video Conferencing technology offered at CPS Human Resource Services. The system can be easily connected to many video conference facilities throughout the United States and Canada.

“Many companies and organizations, like CPS, conduct business across the nation on a day to day basis. Our video conference capabilities now offers these organizations the ability to conduct meetings easily and affordably anywhere in the nation,” said Ed Cole, Executive Director at CPS.

Video conferencing provides the ability for businesses to conduct interviews, meetings and proposals to clients without the expense of costly travel.

Standard features of the video conferencing system include: easy to navigate interface, automatic voice-tracking camera and the ability to install a laptop to share Microsoft PowerPoint and Word documents. The system’s capabilities also include two 36” video monitors, automatic video camera with pan and zoom capabilities, desktop microphones and a computer-sharing hookup-all connected to the Internet by broadband ISDN connection.

For more information about CPS video conferencing capabilities, please call 916.263.3600.
